2010 Issue

Number 19, Spring 2010

Editorial Committee

Ms. Lyndall Nairn, Chair
Dr. Scott Amos
Dr. Will Briggs
Dr. Annette Evans
Ms. Nicole Smith
Ms. Ashley Ferry, Student Representative

The Agora annually presents writings by Lynchburg College students and faculty and includes essays written by students from other institutions that are members of the Association of Core Texts and Courses (ACTC). Lynchburg College contributors participate in the Lynchburg College Symposium Readings (LCSR) program, which integrates ideas from classical selections with contemporary ideas and issues. LCSR classes encourage students to think deeply about current issues and to become sensitive to the interdisciplinary influence of classical ideas. Contributors from other ACTC colleges and universities participate in similar "great books" programs.

Table of Contents

Editorial: In This Issue… Lyndall Nairn
What Is Justice? An Investigation of Leo Strauss’s Natural Right Proposition Laura Marino Rugeles
Wordsworth: Naturalness as Aesthetic Taelor Skinner
Natural Instinct Tess Evans
Incentives and Success Ben Calvert
A Performer’s Argument against the Hierarchy of Musicians Julia Kittel
Set Forth by Boethius in De institutione musica
Photography’s Influence on Painting Jill Markwood

Personal Responses Written in Senior Symposium

Sexual Selection in Modern Times Allison Sypher
Truth Decay: The Media and the Pursuit of Truth Caitlin Flathers
Fake Photos in the News Tim Willis
Biographical Sketches of the Agora Writers
Disclaimer

The Agora is published under the auspices of the Board of Trustees of Lynchburg College. Opinions expressed in the Agora are not necessarily the opinions of Lynchburg College or of other contributing institutions. Guidelines for submissions to the Agora may be found at http://www.agorajournal.org/submission.html.

Submissions must not violate any postage, copyright, obscenity, privacy, or libel laws.