

hips. All the spirits and decided to make the hair of the third section men stand on end. Whether it will

Debaters Lock Horns On Lake's Influence

Cutler and Worrell Oppose Hoye and Hundley in Clash

Whether or not the lake is a hindrance to the social life at Lynchburg College was argued and threshed out in the form of a debate given at the joint meeting of the Virginian and Victorian Literary Societies last Saturday night in the main parlor of Westover Hall.

Upholding the affirmative side of the question and pointing out the bad effects of the newly formed body of water, Miss Esther Cutler and Ernest Worrell gave several strong points which were readily refuted by the negative representatives, Miss Anna Scott Hoye and Maury Hundley, who pictured the crowded condition of the girls' dormitory and the unlimited amount of space and freedom on the lake. It was a non-decision debate.

Jimmy Gillespie favored the societies with two solo numbers and was accompanied by Miss Nancy Mattox, a former student.

Dean Meredith, president of the Virginian Literary Society, was in charge of the meeting, the first of the year of its kind.